

Performance Commentary

Activist investors globally would rather forget the month of May, as reignited trade worries jolted markets. However, we remain confident about the remainder of the year and have had an encouraging start to June. We continue to see material progress on corporate transformations across our portfolio, the strongest example being the fund's largest holding, ThyssenKrupp. The company announced that it is finally parting with its crown jewel, the elevator business, in a move designed to release significant shareholder value. We are now waiting for the market to give credit where credit is due.

Maxell was the fund's largest positive contributor after it surprised most market participants by announcing a substantial extra dividend – in-line with our estimates. Armstrong Flooring was the largest detractor, negatively impacted by higher US tariffs. The company responded by launching a tender offer for 10% of shares outstanding – a positive signal of operational stability despite prevailing market uncertainty.

There is a lot of value potential across the portfolio as many of our holdings have previously traded down due to the nervousness of myopic investors and not deteriorating fundamentals. The vast majority of our portfolio companies, and the progress they have made, remain deeply misunderstood and underappreciated by the market.

SKAGEN Insight invests in a diversified and actively managed portfolio of companies exposed to some of the most attractive activist campaigns globally. Activists seek to unlock value by urging companies to make improvements. SKAGEN Insight "shadows" activists by investing in these companies. The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return. The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon.
