

Performance Commentary

In August, activists continued to have a tough time in the equity market. Consequently, the performance of our shadow activism-strategy remained lacklustre. This development was exaggerated by increasing trade tensions that have generally had a negative impact on the market valuation of our holdings. We are working hard to remedy the situation and strengthen fund performance. In short, we believe there are good reasons for an optimistic stance: the valuation of many of our portfolio companies are at rock bottom-levels, while the operational performance has been broadly in-line with expectations. The increased market uncertainty has also made companies more susceptible to activists' change agendas. While painful in the short term, the volatility is expected to be a positive over the medium term as it is the catalyst for encouraging changes at our portfolio companies. Roxgold and Conduent were the fund's largest positive and negative contributors, respectively. Conduent did however announce a possible break-up and the activist strengthened his grip on the company, buying more shares and orchestrating further board changes – two positives in our view. The outlook for the fund is unchanged; there is a lot of value potential across the portfolio. The vast majority of our portfolio companies, and the progress they have made, remain deeply misunderstood and underappreciated by the market.

SKAGEN Insight invests in a diversified and actively managed portfolio of companies exposed to some of the most attractive activist campaigns globally. Activists seek to unlock value by urging companies to make improvements. SKAGEN Insight "shadows" activists by investing in these companies. The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return. The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon.
