Investment strategy

SKAGEN Focus Lux is a high conviction equity fund that seeks to generate long-term capital growth by investing in a portfolio of global companies with a bias towards small and mid-cap stocks. The fund is actively managed and applies a contrarian and price-driven investment process to create a portfolio which typically trades at a steep discount to the broader market based on traditional valuation metrics.

Risk profile (SRI)

We have classified this product as 4 out of 7, which is a medium risk class.

The summary risk indicator is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the markets. A medium risk class rates the potential losses from future performance at a medium level. Other risks materially relevant to the PRIIP not included in the summary risk indicator: Event risk, liquidity risk, operational risk, counterparty risk, derivatives risk and currency risk. If the fund invests in securities in a currency other than the fund's base currency, the value is affected by changes in the exchange rate. In addition, the value of your payout may be affected if your local currency is different from the fund's currency. This product does not include any protection from future market performance so you could lose some or all of your investment.

Q3 commentary, September 2026

The gargantuan scale of AI-related capex and the substantial weight of AI-linked stocks in global equity indices are putting markets at a crossroads. Questions around adoption rates, security risks and the ultimate return on investment remain, while growing borrowing needs and increasingly complex financing structures add to the uncertainty surrounding future free cash flow.

The volatility in select pockets of global equity markets, particularly in South Korea, has been remarkable and reflects the frenetic pace of the AI build-out, combined with an unusually high level of concentration where just a handful of companies account for the majority of index composition. At the same time, the threat of AI disruption continues to pressure valuations of businesses previously seen as protected by so-called moats. While there may be select large-cap opportunities in the area, the fund currently carries limited direct exposure to the AI asset complex, and we generally find more attractive valuations elsewhere in the global small- and mid-cap equity market, particularly outside the US. Meanwhile, the war in Iran continued to put upward pressure on energy prices, bond yields and the USD, which negatively affected fund performance, especially towards the end of the quarter. The fund lost ground relative to the benchmark (MSCI ACWI) during the period but remains ahead of the global SMID index for the year.

One of the strongest performers in the quarter was silver and gold producer Aya Gold & Silver, which mines these metals in Morocco. Strong exploration results, fading domicile concerns and rising metal prices led to a re-rating of the position. It has been a highly profitable, albeit volatile, investment since the position was initiated in 2024. The holding reached its price target during the month and was subsequently sold. Another strong contributor, supported by higher energy prices, particularly methanol prices, was Methanex. We believe the current favourable operating environment is setting the stage for a capital allocation catalyst that could drive a re-rating later in the year. The company remains a solid top-10 position, although we reduced the holding somewhat during the period. We have been waiting for a re-rating of our highly discounted position in Chinese holding company Swire Pacific, and this partly materialised during the quarter. We continue to see the shares trading at a significant discount to net asset value and the more liquid A-shares. During the second quarter, we received two buyout offers from strategic buyers in the portfolio, for Beazer Homes and Banca Monte dei Paschi di Siena (BMPS). This positive trend continued into the third quarter. During September alone, two portfolio companies received buyout approaches: UK refractory producer Vesuvius (45% premium) received an offer from industry peer RHI Magnesita, while Mexican logistics company Grupo Traxion (22% premium) received a chairman-linked tender offer. Both positions were reduced during the period. On the negative side, South Korean auto-parts and robotics supplier Hyundai Mobis was among the weaker contributors. We believe the delayed disposal of its stake in Boston Dynamics, together with broader sector weakness, explains the softer performance following a strong start to the year. Another negative contributor was brick producer Wienerberger, where the CEO resigned while there remains little evidence of a normalisation in residential construction activity. We reduced both positions during the period.

We exited our position in Albertsons, as the company is failing to invest sufficiently in price competitiveness while competition is intensifying from Walmart and Kroger. In addition, the balance sheet appears increasingly stretched. We initiated a position in the copper sector through Brazilian miner Ero Copper. We believe the shares are suffering from multiple temporary discounts, including ramp-up issues at the Tucumã asset and generally poor communication with financial markets. As a result, the shares trade at a significant discount to net asset value and around 3x forward EV/EBITDA despite a net cash balance sheet. The fund also diversified its Indonesian exposure through an investment in highly discounted cement producer SIG, the country's largest operator. The shares have fallen from grace and gone from being a darling of the Indonesian market to a largely ignored and mispriced asset. The stock trades at around 3x 2027 EV/EBITDA. Under the Danantara state ownership framework, management plans to reduce the number of subsidiaries from more than 40 to approximately 20, and we believe this simplification of the company structure could prove a positive catalyst for the shares.

At the time of writing, the average market capitalisation of the fund's holdings is USD 7.2bn and we are invested in 50 undervalued companies. Reflecting strong idea generation, 35% of current positions were initiated less than a year ago. The fund offers substantial upside of 72% to our aggregated price targets. Consistent with our value-focused investment process, the portfolio trades at an attractive valuation of 0.7x book value and 11.2x earnings power.

Sustainability

SKAGEN's approach to sustainability

Our ESG approach is built on four pillars. In keeping with SKAGEN's active investment philosophy, our sustainability activities centre on active engagement with our holding companies, which is where we believe we can have the greatest impact. We recognise, however, that the full potential of a sustainable investment strategy is best realised when combining the following four pillars.

- ✓ Exclusion
- ✓ Enhanced due diligence
- ✓ ESG factsheet
- ✓ Active ownership

Article 8

Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation (SFDR)

The product promotes environmental and social characteristics by directing its capital towards companies and issuers that meet defined ESG (environmental, social and governance) criteria. This is achieved through compliance with international norms and conventions, by taking into account negative impacts on sustainable development (PAI) and through product- or activity-based exclusions. See the prospectus for more information on the products sustainability characteristics.
